Early Intervention: The Missing Link

(<http://earlyoncenter.org/resource.php?ID=41>)

This seven-minute video is rendered in American Sign Language accompanied by English text. The basic premise challenges the vocabulary commonly used in early intervention and the underlying assumptions and biases inherent in that vocabulary. Though the focus is on the experience of families and individuals in the deaf and hard of hearing community the message has broad implications that cross disciplines and categories of disability.

Early Intervention Strategies for Success

(<http://earlyoncenter.org/resource.php?ID=44>)

Virginia's Early Intervention Professional Development Center hosts a blog that focuses on supporting implementation of best practices in early intervention.

Agreed Upon Practices for Providing Early Intervention Services in Natural Environments

(<http://earlyoncenter.org/resource.php?ID=7>)

This excellent document reflects practices validated through several research, model demonstration and outreach projects whose developers were part of the work group. The practices suggest a flow of activities that need to occur during the IFSP process from first contacts through transition. The practices were written to reflect consensus opinion of the work group members.

Resource Landing Pads for Evidence-Based Practice and Topics

(<http://earlyoncenter.org/resource.php?ID=43>)

Resource landing pads are central locations for information about evidence-based practices and topics related to specific topics of interest. Each Landing Pad features resources organized into four sections: Why Do It? (the evidence base), See For Yourself (videos and demonstrations), Find It Online (websites with additional resources), and Read About It (books, chapters, and articles).

Play: The Heart of Development

(<http://earlyoncenter.org/resource.php?ID=81>)

Play: the Heart of Development was presented at the 65th Annual Conference of the Southern Early Childhood Association by colleagues Camille Catlett, Anne Stewart, & Jane Stewart.

Focused categories of PLAY:

- the heart of development
- a support for each and every young learner
- how we build relationships
- a pathway to healing
- natural
- essential

PowerPoint and handouts are made available and focus on evidence sources, articles, video clips, websites, and instructional resources to use within your area of coursework.
